Introduction

When ATLAS was launched 35 years ago, we had little idea of how significant it would become in the field of education and research in tourism and leisure. We started out with a small team of enthusiastic teachers, researchers and students, a handful of whom are still involved today. The basic aims we had when ATLAS was established were:

- To promote the teaching of tourism, leisure and related subjects.
- To encourage the exchange of staff and students between member institutions.
- To promote links between professional bodies in tourism, leisure and associated subjects and to liaise on educational issues, curriculum development and professional recognition of courses.

Our aims are still basically the same today, although we added aspirations relating to transnational research programmes when 'Research' was added later to the name of ATLAS. This modest start was aided by the expansion of what became the Erasmus Programme in the European Union, which provided funding for staff and student exchanges, intensive programmes and curriculum development projects. This enabled ATLAS to build an administrative base to serve its growing network of members. By the turn of Millennium we started to develop global ambitions, with events and projects in Asia, Australasia and Africa. In the last few years ATLAS has emerged as the leading global network for tourism and leisure, with 148 members in 45 countries at the last count.

Over the years, ATLAS has undertaken a wide range of activities to support members, facilitate knowledge development and exchange and stimulate networking. By 2026, ATLAS had organised:

42 Annual and large-scale conferences
22 ATLAS Africa events
9 ATLAS Asia and Asia-Pacific events
9 ATLAS Latin America events
4 Middle East events
15 PhD seminars
8 Intensive courses
34 Special Interest Groups (including the short-lived Disasters group!)
98 SIG events (meetings, conferences)
71 Webinars and ONLINE events
22 EU and other international projects

We also produced:

94 ATLAS publications
21 special issues of academic journals
19 ATLAS Tourism and Leisure Reviews
26 ATLAS Working Papers

ATLAS has also awarded bachelor and master thesis prizes since 2021, with now in total 24 winners from 9 countries.

To organise all of this work we have had the support of six ATLAS Chairs and 87 ATLAS Board Members. But most importantly, none of this would have been possible without the efforts of ATLAS members around the world, including 1000s of conference delegates, paper presenters and referees, hundreds of authors and dozens of ATLAS staff members, placement students and volunteers.

This all underlines the power of networking – ATLAS has achieved far more than single institutions can do alone. Much of what happens in the ATLAS network is in fact ‘below the radar’ – informal contacts struck up at ATLAS events and continued into discussions, joint projects, exchanges and of course social activities.

As well as our achievements, it is also important to reflect on what we have lost along the way. Some of those who started out on the ATLAS journey 35 years ago are no longer with us:
Marin Bachvarov
Karin Bras
Chris Devereux during Covid (see an appreciation of Chris’ work in Richards, 2021).
Tim Frampton
Kevin Hannam
Dorothea Meyer
Clara Petrillo
Jimi Sekasi
Karel Werdler
Robert Wilus
Bob Wishitemi
